The Unknown Epidemic of Estrogen Dominance

One of the most common (yet severely under-diagnosed) types of hormone imbalance is "estrogen dominance." Dr. Randolph and our clinical team firmly believe that estrogen dominance is an unrecognized epidemic in modern life. Estrogen dominance can short-circuit your internal remote control physically, emotionally, and mentally!

Common symptoms include abdominal weight gain, fatigue, depression, low libido/poor sex drive, mood swings/increased irritability, hot flashes, night sweats, headaches/migraines, and insomnia. Untreated estrogen dominance has been clinically linked to an increased risk of breast and uterine cancers, osteoporosis, low thyroid, and dementia. LEARN MORE about estrogen dominance, how to relieve your symptoms, and how to reduce your risk of significant health problems!
